SILVER TEQUILA is not aged so that it intentionally emits a stronger flavor of the blue agave plant. The coloring of the tequila is clear and is usually 100% blue agave.

REPOSADO TEQUILA means "restful", which implies that this type of tequila is aged or rested. Reposado Tequila is aged in white oak casks from 2 months to a year. The aging process gives the tequila a mellow oak flavor combined with the flavor of the blue agave. The coloring of a Reposado is usually a slight golden color.

AÑEJO TEQUILA is aged in white oak casks for over a year and must be aged in smaller batches. The lengthy aging process gives the tequila a heavier oak flavor and more complex qualities. The longer aging process creates an añejo tequila that's a light brownish color.
